CHEF TIMOTHY HOLLINGSWORTH

An award-winning chef hailing from Los Angeles, Chef Timothy Hollingsworth presides over the culinary vision and execution at Hundredfold, an American brasserie with a touch of whimsy. Chef Timothy is an accomplished restaurateur, best known for Otium in Los Angeles, which enjoyed 10 years in the spotlight, and Chain, founded in partnership with B.J. Novak, which reimagines chain restaurant favorites.

Chef Timothy began his career at The French Laundry, where he worked for 13 years including four as Chef de Cuisine. Chef Tim has also amassed accolades and awards throughout his career, including the Rising Star Chef Award from The San Francisco Chronicle and the Rising Star Chef of the Year Award from the James Beard Foundation.

In 2018, Chef Timothy competed on Netflix's "The Final Table," a global culinary competition series. Chef Timothy also served as a judge on season 3 of "The Great American Recipe," a popular PBS series. He currently lives in Los Angeles with his wife and four kids.
